What a succubus is

The visual appearance of a succubus typically includes a female body with wings, horns and a tail. But some succubus are depicted lacking one or more of these attributes. So what really determines if this is a succubus or just a common female demon? This can only be found by looking at her inner qualities. First off she has to be beyond masculinity. This means there is no dependence on any male qualities. She may have them, but the core of her being is ruled by feminine thinking. What you see when looking closer is the main characteristics which makes her different from other female beings. A succubus is immortal. Once born she will only evolve. What most people think of when they hear the word, is an entity who was born this way, complete with all attributes, existing beyond the human world. But when a being is born it may look in any way and exist on any plane. Some beings were not born by a succubus, but they later developed into one. This means they may have had the form of a spirit, and incarnated as a human or even animal or plant. The journey on which you finally realize your inner potential may take many odd paths. For this reason, "succubus" is an external descriptive term used when referring to a wide range of beings of similar qualities.

How to become a succubus

The inner desire to have this form, the love of all things female, is what motivates the follower of this path. Someone with this desire will manifest this by living according to certain standards. This may in turn result in a healthy body, but the type of body a person has is not important in itself. Moving beyond the human cycle of birth and death is a requirement, a succubus does not personally take part in it. For someone living as a human today, your full manifestation is on the outside of this current lifetime. You will live as a human and fulfill what you should do in life. Your succubus nature will take over after everything of this human life has been settled. Using your developed abilities may be possible, but everything looks normal on the surface. There will always be a normal human explanation for the things you do with those abilities. No one but you will understand what really happened.

Your first step is to love your own female form, seeing yourself the way you want to be inside. There is no connection to your human body when doing this. Maintain a normal behaviour. All change takes place on the inside of your being. Complete detachment from all human concerns, is your goal. Having no worries can be achieved by external means, if this is enough to create the correct viewpoint. Once seeing the ends of all human troubles, handling them will be part of your everyday life. Even with the material support removed, your view of seeing a way to handle all troubles, will remain. This will break the cycle of rebirth for you - you now belong to the realms of immortals. Because your love for the female form was used in reaching this ability, it is what you will now have.
